Wallingford

Wallingford is situated on the bank of the River Thames, in Southern Oxfordshire, between Oxford and Reading.

Steeped in history, with a medieval bridge over the River Thames, ancient fortifications, and one of the oldest charters in England, Wallingford proclaims a colourful past.

Today the town is a bustling market town, with a wide array of independent shops, pubs and cafes.

Wallingford Town Hall

The present Town Hall was Constructed in 1670 during the reign of Charles II.

It is a timber framed building, rendered to give the appearance of stone. Its Venetian windows on the north are particularly attractive and have been copied in a number of later buildings around the Market Place.

The Town Hall comprises of two function rooms, the Main Chamber and the Committee Room, with the Main Chamber offering beautiful views over the historic Market Place.

The Main Chamber

The walls are adorned with commemorative boards, listing all the town mayors since 1231 to the present day.

This room can comfortably accommodate up to 60 guests, for a wide range of functions, including civil ceremonies, naming ceremonies, private parties and conferences.

The Committee Room

The Committee Room has the perfect ambience for smaller, more intimate functions or events.

The room can accommodate up to 20 guests and like the Main Chamber, displays artefacts of Wallingford's impressive history, including the town mace, dated 1650, and is said to have been copied for the mace of the House of Commons.
